

All weddings, of course, are beautiful—as are all brides—but in anyone's mind that the marriage of Miss California Lucas to Mr. William B. Lymer on Wednesday night was one of the daintiest and most attractive affairs of its kind that has been witnessed in many years. There is always an enthusiasm and absence of formality about a house wedding, too, that makes it thoroughly enjoyable. This happy spirit was more than noticeable at Wednesday's ceremony where the majority of the guests were kamaainas and life long friends. The Lucas home on Beretania street was brilliant in its setting of electric lights and lanterns. A pink and white color scheme was used, within doors the effect being Dresden-like and charming beyond words. Palms, vines and feathery bamboo were used about the sides of the rooms and on the balconies, brightened occasionally with lovely bowls of pink roses and hibiscus. Leading up to the altar was a bridal path of blossoms and tulle. White enameled Louis Quatorze pillars surmounted by Dresden bouquets of pink roses and tulle were linked together with vines from the entrance of the drawing room to the altar at the other end. A high wall of white Calla and Asconion lilies intermingled with soft green vines formed a lovely background for the bride couple as they pledged their troth.

The bride was unusually beautiful even for a bride. Her gown was of white brocade charmeuse, draped in the prevailing mode, the skirt being caught upon the left side over a flounce of real lace. The bodice was trimmed with lace and some beautiful rhinestone ornaments. A small round court train hung from her shoulders, almost concealed by the exquisite veil of Brussels and rose point lace fastened on her with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and bride's roses. Toward the end of the evening each one of the guests was given a blossom from this bouquet with which to remember the happy event. Two romances have already been connected with her wedding veil which make it especially interesting. It was originally ordered for a princess of a European realm—a great beauty who was about to enter upon a true love match. But misfortune befell her and the marriage never took place. It was then purchased by Mrs. Bruce Cartwright who wore it at her own wedding two years ago. She is now going to it Miss Lucas this week and if her generous intentions are fulfilled it will be connected with many brides before its life is ended.

Miss Sara Lucas and Miss Edith Williams the two charming bridesmaids, were gowned in a delicate shade of pink and carried clusters of Caroline Testa roses veiled with tulle. The former's dress was of chiffon over charmeuse. Draperies of rose point lace fell over the left shoulder, caught at the neck with rhinestones, a girle of soft pink brocade satin finished the costume. In her hair she wore a coronet of pearls and a sweeping white aigrette. Miss Williams' gown was of pink chiffon over crepe de chine with an overdress of Brussels lace. Rhinestones and the fashionable touch of black were used as trimming. A tulle cap caught on one side with a white aigrette completed the toilette.

Father Stephen performed the short but impressive Catholic ceremony. The groom was supported by Mr. William Williamson as best man while the others were Mr. Sumner Bradford, Mr. William Roth, Mr. Edmund Hedemann and Mr. Bruce Cartwright, Jr. Large marquees were erected in the garden and after the short reception which followed the ceremony, the guests repaired hither and sat down to a delicious supper served at small tables. Kaul's orchestra which had played the wedding march previously, struck up lively tunes during the repast. The bride's health was drunk and responded to most happily by the groom. The guests then yielded to the lure of the music and spent the rest of the evening in dancing. In the meantime the bride and groom stole quietly away to a place of hiding at the Peninsula where the Sibylla this morning. Their honeymoon will take them from Santa Barbara to New York and Boston, all the points of interest in the central Pacific line being in their itinerary. October, however, will see them once more in Honolulu where they will take a prominent part in the social life of the younger set.

About two hundred and fifty people assembled at the Lucas home to witness the marriage of this popular young couple. They represented some of the oldest families of Honolulu, and the town's smartest personages. The fair sex was beautifully gowned, their exquisite toilettes adding much to the brilliancy of the occasion. Mrs. Thomas Lucas, the mother of the bride, wore a handsome gown of black trimmed with cut steel beads on pallor. Mrs. John Lucas was gowned in amethyst colored satin.

Mrs. Edward H. Timberlake was in white lace over satin, with touches of old blue satin. Mrs. Clifford High wore a stunning gown of brocade charmeuse of a new flame color. The bodice was draped with chiffon of the same shade over fillet lace.

Mrs. Frank Thompson wore a gown of white satin with an overdress of deep blue net embroidered with parronerie and jewels.

Mrs. George Beckley was handsomely gowned in gold colored charmeuse over white.

Mrs. Arthur Wilder wore charmeuse of a delicate wild rose hue.

Miss William B. Lymer, formerly Miss Callie Lucas, whose marriage was a brilliant event of this week.

Mrs. Harvey Murray was in black and gold.

Mrs. William Williamson was in white with amethyst ornaments.

Mrs. Lydia McStocker wore white chiffon gracefully draped over charmeuse.

Miss Gemma Wadman wore gold colored charmeuse with shadow lace and rhinestones. A quaint little cap of gold net and pink roses finished the costume.

Miss Helen Gilvin was gowned in turquoise blue satin, draped with chiffon.

Mrs. C. Hedemann wore gray chiffon over satin.

Mrs. Bruce Cartwright Jr. wore cloth of gold with old gold ornaments and parronerie.

Mrs. B. F. Dillingham was regal in her gown of black with suggestions of white.

Miss Christina Bradley wore a dainty frock of white with shadow lace.

Miss Genevieve Bradley wore old rose satin caught up over an accordion pleated flounce of chiffon. The bodice was finished with shadow lace.

Miss Isabelle McCarrison wore apple green chiffon over white.

A charming frock of white chiffon and satin with trimmings of rhinestones was worn by Mrs. Robert Hair.

Mrs. A. G. M. Robertson was handsomely gowned in pink chiffon over satin embroidered with rhinestones and jewels.

Mrs. E. M. Watson was in black with touches of Balkan.

Miss Julie McStocker wore apple green satin with shadow lace and a suggestion of old rose on the bodice.

Mrs. Norma Adams was in white with touches of lavender and lace.

Miss Daisy Colburn wore blue chiffon over satin.

Miss Nina Craig was in white with attractive trimmings of Bulgarian hues.

Miss Eunice Pratt was dainty in a gown of pink chiffon over satin.

Miss Henrietta Smith wore an attractive gown of pink chiffon over blue satin, trimmed with delicate pink chiffon roses.

Mrs. Lemuel Abies was in white.

Mrs. Hair's Tea

A very delightful affair was given on Monday afternoon when Mrs. Robert Hair entertained at tea at the Colonial. The Misses Gertrude and Winnifred Wilson of Portland, who are the guests of Mrs. Hair for a prolonged visit, were the motifs of the occasion. The broad lanai of the Colonial was decorated with palms, ferns and tall white Bermuda lilies in vases and jardiniere. Dainty tables at which tea was served were placed about. In the center of each was a cut-glass bowl of blue hydrangea blossoms and ferns. Blue flowers being as a rule so difficult to procure in Hawaii, the color scheme is seldom used and was therefore doubly appreciated on Monday.

In the receiving line with Mrs. Hair were Miss Gertrude Wilson and Miss Winnifred Wilson.

Mrs. C. A. Long presided at the punch bowl, which was placed on a small table covered with ferns and white lilies. Miss Ethel Whiting assisted in serving refreshments.

Although the mercury without was doing its best to reach the hundred mark, the lanais of the Colonial were cool with the Nuuanu breeze. The guests wore light, fluffy dresses as tribute to the summer day, and with the dainty decorations, made the scene one of unusual attractiveness. During the afternoon Mrs. A. G. M. Robertson, Miss Gertrude Wilson and Miss May Marshall sang most delightfully, while a number of piano solos were rendered by Mrs. C. A. Long and the Misses Marshall before the highly appreciative audience.

Among those invited to meet the Misses Wilson were: Mrs. A. G. M. Robertson, Miss Edith Williams, Miss Abby Buchanan, Mrs. J. J. Coke, Mrs. John Dominis, Miss Callie Lucas, Mrs. Edna Bennett, Mrs. Chas. Chillingworth, Mrs. E. A. Douthitt, Mrs. T. H. Petrie, Miss Elsie McGregor, Mrs. John Drew, Mrs. Malcolm Macintyre, Miss Ethel Whiting, Mrs. D. Macintyre, Miss Florence Hoffman, Mrs. F. E. Thompson, Mrs. J. B. Rentiers, Mrs. George Waterhouse, Mrs. A. Brown, Miss Mabel Phillips, Mrs. Antonio Perry, Mrs. William Jamieson, Mrs. J. W. Cathcart, Miss Margaret McLeellan, Mrs. Chas. Jeremiah, Mrs. C. A. Scott, Mrs. Angus, Mrs. Myra Angus, Miss Jean Angus, Mrs. C. A. Long, Mrs. Warren Dease, Miss Lucy Ward, Miss Kulamann Ward, Miss May Marshall, Miss Nellie Marshall, Mrs. Ewing.

Gerrit Wilders' Swimming Party.
The popularity of swimming parties continues with the warm weather and will probably continue to be the chief kind of entertainment until October and cooler days. Many affairs of this kind were given this week—little ones, middle-sized ones and big ones, varying from the most impromptu dips to highly elaborate surfing parties and suppers. Mr. and Mrs. Gerrit Wilder entertained delightfully this way on Tuesday. In honor of the Misses Margaret, Helen and Katherine Jones, who are leaving next week on the Niagara. The affair was given at the Wilder home in Makiki, where they have a splendid fresh water bathing pool. Afterwards the guests were served a substantial tea, a number of non-swimmers joining them in this.

Among those present were the Misses Helen, Margaret and Katherine Jones, Miss Pauline Schaefer, Miss Alice Hastins, Miss Thelma Murphy, Miss Ruth Hyde, Miss Margaret Center, Miss Corinda Low, Miss Alice Hoogs, Miss Eloise Wichman, Miss Rosamund Swanny, Miss Ruth Soper, Miss Ruth Anderson, Mrs. Walter Dillingham, Mrs. Harrison, Major Davis, Mrs. Heath, Mr. Jack Heath, Mr. James Wilder and others.

Dancing Class at Fort Shafter.
The enthusiasm for the new fancy dances which have finally reached Honolulu has grown to the point where no one will dance anything else but the tango, two-step or the Panama rose. Those who have not already learned these steps are speedily acquiring the art, and dancing classes are very much in vogue. The officers of Fort Shafter were hosts at an affair of this kind on Monday night, with Mrs. Mary Gunn and Miss White to instruct the uninitiated. A delightful evening was spent, everyone determining to continue their lessons until they had mastered all the steps of the new dances. Among those present were Capt. and Mrs. James E. Bell, Capt. and Mrs. Benjamin Watkins, Major H. O. Williams, Lieut. and Mrs. L. O. Mathews, Major and Mrs. M. J. Lenihan, the Misses Lenihan, Lieut. and Mrs. Ernest Gayler, Lieut. and Mrs. Samuel Gordon, Lieut. and Mrs. G. E. Turner, Capt. and Mrs. Charles S. Lincoln, Capt. W. R. Gibson, Miss Betty Case, Miss Helen Alexander, Dr. Leo Mudel, Lieut. W. Rose, Lieut. Carl Hardigg, and Lieut. N. Campa-nole.

Colonel Hawes' Luncheon.
Colonel Hawes was host at a delightful stag luncheon on Thursday at the Pacific Club in honor of General Frederick Funston, a friend of long standing. Those invited to meet General Funston were Governor Walter F. Frear, Judge Sanford B. Dole, Mr. George Carter, Danish Consul Hedemann, Mr. Faxon Bishop, Mr. H. Hackfeld, Mr. Francis Mills Swanny, Mr. Gerrit Wilder, Hon. W. O. Smith, and Mr. Richard Ivers.

Service Bridge Club.
Although Tuesday was hot to a desperate degree both in and out of town, the enthusiasts of the Service Bridge Club were not deterred from the pleasures of royal auction. The meeting was held this week at the home of Mrs. Larry McAfee on Kalihi road. There were three tables of bridge, the prizes—after several interesting rubbers—going to Mrs. James E. Bell, Mrs. John R. Matheson and Mrs. A. J. Booth. Cooling refreshments were then served. Those present were Mrs. A. Schlansky, Mrs. G. E. Turner, Mrs. Charles S. Lincoln, Mrs. Samuel Gordon, Mrs. James E. Bell, Mrs. John R. Matheson, Mrs. R. Lister, Mrs. Robert C. MacDonald, Miss Florence Hoffman, Mrs. Birch O. Mahaffey and the hostess.
